

There is far too much violence on TV. Kids see this, and view guns as a good way to solve problems. Of course, it is usually the good-looking likable actors who gun down the less likable characters; if the latter do use guns, they miss. So kids get the idea if they use guns they are cool and everything works out right.

TV shows don't show the negatives -- the lives destroyed, maimed, brain-damaged, the pain. They don't show the blood, or excrement as those hit void themselves.

I would support a total ban on gun use in TV, both broadcast and cable.